

GOLDMAN SACHS: The GS Guide to Beijing

Opened in 1994, the Goldman Sachs Beijing office was our first in China – marking the beginning of a permanent presence on the mainland

Our offices are in Winland International center, 18th Floor, 7 Finance Street

Beijing is the nation's political, cultural and educational center

The city is built to a square layout. Locals prefer to use 'go east/west/north/south' when giving directions, instead of 'turn right/left'

Bring our kids to work day is usually close to Halloween and our children will 'trick or treat' in the office

Beijing city experiences the winter season from late November and lasts for about 100 days. Beautiful snow scenes are created when snow falls on the cityscapes and nearby mountains

Finance Street is our favorite spot for a walking meeting or outside lunch

Quotes:

- “The best thing about living in our city? Dynamic neighborhoods mixing traditional histories and modern vibes” – Mandy, Executive Office
- “The Fuchengmen Subway Line 2 is about a 5 minute walk from the office. This is really convenient and helps avoid traffic jams during rush hours” – Anna, Operations
- “The best things about our city: traditional food, the snowfall, and Hutong – narrow streets and alleys commonly associated with Chinese cities” – Weihong, Engineering

Our Favorite Parks Are:

- Summer Palace
- The Temple of Heaven

Our Favorite Landmarks:

- Forbidden City
- National Museum
- White Pagoda
- Great Wall of China

Festivals and Cultural Traditions:

- Peking Opera
- Chinese New Year
- Traditional Beijing Hotpot Cuisine
- Moon Festival

See yourself here. Click the apply button on our students or professionals pages to explore opportunities in Beijing and around the world